Zavarzina G.A.* Concept “political network” in Russian concept sphere of a new government

The represented article is devoted to the “political network” concept formation in the field of modern Russia state administration, thus promoting consolidation in Russian linguistic mentality of up-to-date information technologies’ usage. The paper analyses structural elements of nominative area of investigated concept that characterize political-administrative unions, political-state interests, interrelations in Power institutions and collective activities. Special focus is aimed at the description of traditional cognitive indications of the concept (open and dialogic signs, active cooperation of state and private organizations in the process of political debates, the improvement in civil services) and cognitive indications baring purely Russian specificity (bureaucracy, unevenness in introducing of new administrative instruments in different parts of the country, lack of computer competence of political subjects, poor development of private establishments).

Key words: concept, nominative area of the concept, concept sphere, cognitive indications, political network, state administration.
