

POLITICAL SCIENCE

(specialty 23.00.02)

Skorokhodova V.P. Peculiarities of social-and-political tension: on the analysis of the problem

The aim of article is the study of the factors and mechanisms of social and political tensions in Russian society, which are an obstacle on the way of modernization and ensure the stabilization of the situation. The features of social and political tensions in modern Russia are analyzed. The internal and external indicators of tensions are detected. Definite ways to measure tension in the society are proposed. The necessity and expediency of the effective government activities at central, regional and local level, aimed at reducing social tensions and provide stability in the society, is proved. It is shown that the latent social tensions in Russian society is quite high and tend to further increase. Complex of measures of public authorities aimed at addressing social problems will reduce the growth of social and political tensions.

Key words: tension, social-and-political, society, power.

Southern scientific

center of Russian academy of science

July, 14, 2012
