Gapsalamov A.R. Industry management system during NEP period: history of trusts formation of the Tatar ASSR

In the modern historical science the most part of works is devoted to the general issues of the Russian economy development, changes in the management apparatus, etc. At the same time there are a few works dedicated to the regional peculiarities. The study is intended to fill this gap partially. The article considers the questions of formation and development of the trusted industry of the Tatar Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic in the period of new economic policy. The special attention in the study is given to the consideration of the issues connected with the problems in the system of trusts and the result of which became reorganizations. For a short period of time the number of trusts and the enterprises which they included was constantly changing. Nevertheless in the second half of the 1920s the problems of inconsistency between the growing production and the falling behind management structure became more visible. As a consequence, there was a need to modernize further the system of industry management. This is facilitated by the process of started industrialization.
