Linguoaxiologic aspect of semantics of adjectives in anthroponymic vocabulary tobolsk tatars

On the basis of the description of adjectives included in anthroponymic vocabulary of Tobolsk Tatars it is considered linguoaxiologic aspect of semantics of adjectives in the Tatar language and Tobol-Irtish dialect. The factual material of the study was the above mentioned lexical-semantic group of adjectives obtained from the Russian archives containing the population audit dating back to the XVII-XIX centuries and the first Russian data records of 1897. The records are from the Tobol branch of the State archive of Tyumen region. The basic methods of the study are the descriptive and contrastive ones. Additional methods used were analysis of lexical-graphical materials, semantic analysis, quantitative data processing and etymological analysis. It is detected semantic originality of adjectives belonging to the 1st, 2nd and 3rd levels of lexico-semantic groups of words, reflecting the dynamics of the evaluation of the relations between the subject and the object (the nominee and the nominated).

Key words: formation, classification, semantics of adjectives, qualitative and relative adjectives, the dynamics of the estimated relationship.
