

PHILOSOPHY

E.A. Agapova

(Southern federal university. Rostov-on-Don, Russia)

Mimicry of censorship in modern society

In the new informational society the most effective way of filtrating information is carried out through manipulation of individuals' consciousness. Thus, the role of the institution of censorship is taken to the sphere of high technologies and scientific research of the human's psychic setup. There was a genuine revolution in the ways of social and political government. The main trend of evolution of authority's technologies and the aim of their change and improvement consists in getting the maximum effect of influence upon people and their voluntary submission with the minimum expenditure.

Key words: society, mimicry, high technology, manipulation, power, culture.

September, 16, 2015
