

LINGUISTICS

S.G. Agapova, A.V. Poloyan

(Southern federal university. Rostov-on-Don, Russia)

Dialog as a type of virtual communication

It is considered such type of virtual communication as comments to the article or the statement in electronic space where communication is characterized by specialized audience the distinctive feature of which is association of a quantity of participants for the period of communication by mutual interests and professional addictions. A necessary element of virtual communication in this case is maintenance of emotional contact as the modern virtual space is really emotionally rich and the computer mediated discourse in many respects coincides with colloquial one what presents some interest to research from the point of view of communicative syntax.

Key words: virtual communication, communicative linguistics, dialogical remark, proposition, comment.

September, 29, 2015

---