

LINGUISTICS

V.O. Puchkov

(Southern federal university. Rostov-on-Don, Russia)

The semantics of French phraseological units, bearing a comparative turn with a component-zoonym

French phraseological units are considered according to semantics, in their structure there is a comparative turn with a component, which can give a name to any species. On the basis of its analysis, there are semantic groups of similar phraseological units, which have a certain grammatical structure that helps to examine semantical variety of phraseological units according to their grammatical model. Its difference is setting depending its lexical component of p.u., which is preceded to comparative turn. According to semantics and the structure of phraseological units there is a degree of its representativeness in French.

Key words: phraseological unit, comparative turn, zoonym, grammatical model, anthropomorphous semantics.

16 февраля 2016 г.
