A unified concept of historical education in Russia as a factor of national security

It is made an attempt to formulate the basic provisions of the uniform concept of historical education in Russia as the strategic resource of national security. It should be reflected: the archetypes of national consciousness; the elimination of the reflection of individual historical periods as casual and false; interpretation of the role of the state as a universal, integrative factor in the Russian community; the heroic patterns of behavior; orientation of young people on a creative analysis of the historical sources and literature in order to create, demythologized consciousness. This concept will contribute to the development holistic and sustainable historical consciousness on the basis of which are possible: value the integration of Russian society, the formation of a national sense of existence and development, as well as the adoption of national optimism.

Key words: history, national security, Russia, civilization, historical education.
