Discursive-cognitive paradigm of linguaphilosophy in the context of philosophy and methodology of Humanities

Modern humanitarian science until recently was dominated by an idea of the linear nature of the development of linguistic theory. The researchers believed that linguistic knowledge is accumulated by gradual approximation to the understanding of language by broadening the empirical basis of the study. With the end of the XX century, scientists finally came to the conclusion that language development is not always straightforward. Therefore, there is a need to explicate the discursive-cognitive paradigm of linguaphilosophy in the light of the philosophy and methodology of humanitarian sciences.

Key words: paradigm, methodology of Humanities, integration of science, linguistics, linguaphilosophy, discursive-cognitive paradigm of linguistics.
