

PHILOSOPHY

Gennady A. Vorobyev

(Pyatigorsk state university of linguistics. Pyatigorsk, Russian Federation)

The concept of a normal society in the coordinates of the representation of social entropy and reproduction of complex social reality

It has been discussed the problems associated with the theory and concept of normal society in their correlation with the phenomenon of social entropy. The concept of a normal society in the coordinates of the representation of social entropy and reproduction of complex social reality becomes topical and important due to the fact that in a number of contemporary theories it is emphasized the embeddedness of social and cultural change in the very nature of social order and social disorganization acts as a starting point in the analysis of succession. As a result, the degree of manifestation of social entropy due to the political instability and social uncertainty that clearly fits into the common space of socio-cultural crisis.

Key words: social entropy, concept of a normal society, social uncertainty, reproduction of complex social reality, disturbance of social relations.

May 19, 2017
