

PEDAGOGY

Elena Yu. Esionova

(Rostov branch, Russian customs academy. Rostov-on-Don, Russian Federation)

The latest information technologies and didactics issues during the work with digital educational resources

The article is concerned with the study of a problem of the latest information technologies usage in the higher education system. Relevancy of the topic is conditioned by the need to take for the Russian higher education system a rightful place on the global educational industry. This article presents the role, the purposes and effective methods of the latest information technologies application from the perspective of computer didactics in our country and abroad. The author offers the basic principles of multimedia programs development and also the most effective types of software. The paper presents some important problems of methods and computer didactics in the education process.

Key words: the latest information technologies, computer didactics, educator's technological culture.

September 12, 2017
