

PHILOSOPHY

Natalya V. Berezhnaya, Tatyana I. Mozgovaya

(Don state technical university. Rostov-on-Don, Russian Federation)

The phenomenon of "libertalism" in philosophy of the personal identity

In accordance with the social and philosophical methodological logic interpretation of the person, as a result of the categorical, conceptual and phenomenological analysis, defines the cognitive scope of the concept of the person as an anthropological and socio-cultural measures of unity and integrity of the identity of consciousness with itself in the search for identity, the individual incarnation "libertal" becoming integrity identity through mechanism. Formation of personality understanding in the context of the philosophy is implemented in two ideological epochs – prepersonal and personal. Prepersonal era forms initially irrational ideological construct mythological, religious and philosophical foundations of understanding and interpretation of the person. Starting from the philosophy of modern times, it is necessary to mention the formation of a rational approach to the understanding and treatment of the individual. In this classic schematics historical typology of the ancient world, the Middle Ages, modern times may be a historical "skeleton" for the analysis of the genesis and development of ideas about the prepersonal and personal era in the understanding of personality analysis of the phenomenon in a philosophical context. Accentuation of congenital or acquired social identity of accidents in the prepersonal and the personal era takes different points of their ideological domination.

Key words: social philosophy, personality, personal identity, libertalism.

November 23, 2017

---