Life and death of the person in conditions of evolutionary transformations of culture

The specifics of interrelation of phenomena of life and the death of the person in the conditions of evolutionary transformations of culture is revealed. The author believes that the evolutionary transformations of culture resulting from dialectics of life and death of the generations of people replacing each other in a civilized part of mankind with each new generation lead to expansion of opportunities of freedom of the person, its quality and specific manifestation. Human life is accompanied by constant dissatisfaction that pushes it to look for meaning of life beyond its limits, to be beyond cash life, to try to look in death chasm, to overcome purely human in the person. But fight for the personality and its realization is a way to relative immortality. Immortality of the personality is shown in the achievements of creativity not only finding the embodiment in culture, but also being a condition of evolutionary transformations of culture.

Key words: life, death, meaning of life, evolution, culture, person, personality, philosophical anthropology.
