

PHILOLOGY

Anna S. Statsenko, Yury A. Ryzhenko

(Kuban state technological university. Krasnodar, Russian Federation)

Function of expressive syntactical constructions in texts of religious style

Religious theme for a long time for a variety of courses remained less researched, partly tabooed. The reason draw the changes of situation and also draw changes of approaches to scientific work in this field. The question of religious style place in system of functional styles is being discussed for several decades. Religious discourse is analyzed by linguists from different sides. Any functional style has its specific characteristics. Expressive constructions in text, their place, features, variety let see a particular principles in functional style language realization. Syntax of Russian language is characterized by a wide range and variety of stylistic means, huge emphasis opportunity. Especially colorful emotional and expressive features of word appear on syntax level. In the article authors researched variety of expressive syntax constructions that function in the texts of religious style.

Key words: style, religious functional style, expressive syntax, figure of speech, expression of speech.

June 25, 2018
