

PHILOLOGY

Marzhan U. Suleibanova

(Chechen state university. Grozny, Chechen Republic, Russian Federation)

Related derivation as a universal category for different languages

The most specific area is intra-verbal word formation, in which distinct differences are primarily due to ways and means of word formation. Prefix verbal word formation, including prefix-complex, is widely represented, as is known, in the Russian language. Prefix-complex verbs: to impregnate, to pacify, to unfold. Noun cluster: to charity (old bookish), to plot (obsolete). Intraglotal prefixation is quite active in Nakh languages, mainly composite derivation. The function of prefixes of verbal composites uses postpositions, as well as a few original and borrowed prefixes: postpositions (serving as prefixes): Chechen, Ingush: chu – in, inside, chukhosavala – sprygut, tte – on, tte tasavala – pounce.

Key words: intra-verbal word formation, intraglotal prefixation, ways and means of word formation.

June 5, 2018
