

PHILOSOPHY

Khasan A.-A. Makaev

(Pyatigorsk state university. Pyatigorsk, Russian Federation)

Features of formation of spiritually-moral values of young people through the traditional and innovative

It is analyzed the problems of formation of spiritual and moral values of youth on the basis of the traditional and innovative. The scientific approaches to the essence of the considered question about the formation of spiritual and moral values of young people that existed at different stages of the historical development of philosophical thought are considered. It is revealed that the modern system of education should represent the main factor of realization of rich spiritual and moral potential of Russian traditional culture for the purpose of restoration of the best centuries-old domestic foundations of social and individual life, psychophysiological improvement of youth, protection of cultural and historical heritage from modern aggressive informatization. The means of spiritual and moral education are analyzed. Within the research it was found that an appropriate system of education is necessary, which provides free access to the national and world cultural and spiritual heritage, without which it is impossible spiritual and moral revival of the individual.

Key words: spiritual and moral values, traditional, innovative, socialization, improvement, historical development.

September 25, 2018