

PHILOLOGY

Ines V. Ruz-Bryushina, Elena A. Beretskaya

(Kuban state technological university. Krasnodar, Russian Federation)

Value-semantic features of students discourse (on the example of KubSTU students)

It is examined the characteristics of individual students cognitive space. Verbalization of own experience is carried out by the abstract vocabulary, the specific vocabulary is used for disclosing the content of the concepts. Thesaurus of students' speech personality enables the conceptualization of reality, correlating the position of the respondents to the concepts and values of education. It is considered the axiological aspect of personality relations with the outside world. It is determined linguistic conceptualization of moral values of modern students. On the basis of practical material it is proved invariability of valuable components of the individual, examples are given of forming axiological world outlook of university students identified in the survey with a detailed response.

Key words: linguistic identity, personality, world outlook, values, axiology, conceptualization of reality.

May 30, 2019
