Word formation and its role in enriching Russian vocabulary

New words appear in the language on the basis of the old ones and as new formations, and as a result of the formation of new meanings in old words. These ways of replenishment of language with words are the main, defining. Presenting a collection of methods, rules of formation of new words, word formation is no less closely connected with grammar, with the grammatical structure of the language. It affects, first of all, the fact that "new words are arranged according to the grammatical categories that are peculiar to the language" any word that arises in the language appears in it as a word of a certain and, most importantly, already existing in the language of the grammatical class (noun, adjective, verb, participle, adverb, etc.). Thus, in the language system "the area of word formation is the arena of complex and multidirectional interaction of lexical and grammatical categories".

Key words: new formation, ways of updating the language, grammatical structure of the language, relation of the word with the dictionary.
