Socialization in the context of interconfession interaction: a philosophical analysis

At the current stage of social development in Russia, special attention is paid to the socialization of the individual as a dynamic potential of the state. In this regard, consideration of socialization in the context of interfaith development, social and philosophical analysis of factors affecting the course and dynamics of this process, make it possible to predict priority areas of social planning at different levels of government. Issues of socialization of the individual always remain relevant. This is primarily due to the constantly changing conditions and demands of the social environment in which a man lives. The adoption of norms that ensure the social adaptation of the individual, as well as the development of his or her various properties and qualities, allows for the dynamic functioning of the most modern society.

Key words: personality, society, society, values, consciousness, identity, religion, cultural norms.
