Concepts «heart» and «soul» in the English and Arabic world language pictures

It is considered the concepts of “heart” and “soul” in the linguistic picture of the world of two different structural languages, English and Arabic. The picture of the world is the whole face of the universe, it is the fruit of all human efforts. It appears as a result of mutual understanding and relationships with the globe. It includes the everyday connection with the whole universe, the subject-unitary activity of the individual. The concepts of soul and heart of the British and Arabs are perceived in the same way, as an organ experiencing a variety of feelings, both positive and negative. This category exhibits universal features and differential features in the studied structural languages, such as English and Arabic. The heart and soul are not only places where a person “keeps emotions”, but on the whole it is a spiritual, psychological and physical center of life.

Key words: concept, heart, soul, linguistic picture of the world, English language, Arabic language.
