

PHILOSOPHY

Elena A. Agapova

(Southern federal university. Rostov-on-Don, Russian Federation)

Destructive “challenges” of modern civilization

It is considered the problem of identifying the risks of the emergence of destabilizing effects of the society of modern civilization. The main global challenges of modern civilization in political, economic, socio-cultural and other aspects, in our opinion, are the confrontational dialogue of civilizations and cultures, the migration crisis, interethnic and interfaith enmity, aggressive nationalism, xenophobia, international terrorism, and the use of hybrid war technologies. The globalist "dialogue" acquires imperative rhetoric, persistently demands from representatives of other cultures to accept the paradigm of the civilizational development of the West, sacrificing their own civilizational preferences for the implementation of technological innovations of Western thinking.

Key words: globalist "dialogue", destructive challenges, counterculture, communication, competing worldviews, information space, hybrid wars.

November 12, 2021
